

Food Fight

by Kenn Nesbitt (Narrators 1-6)

Narrator 1: We'd never seen the teachers
in a state of such distress.

Narrator 2: The principal was yelling
that the lunchroom was a mess.

Narrator 3: It started off so innocent
when someone threw a bun,

Narrator 4: but all the other kids decided
they should join the fun.

Narrator 5: It instantly turned into
an enormous lunchroom feud,

Narrator 6: as students started hurling
all their halfway-eaten food.

Narrator 1: A glob went whizzing through the air,
impacting on the wall.

Narrator 2: Another chunk went sailing out
the doorway to the hall.

Narrator 3: The food was splattered everywhere—
the ceilings, walls, and doors.

Narrator 4: A sloppy, gloppy mess was on the tables and the floors.

Narrator 5: And so our good custodian
ran out to grab his mop.

Narrator 6: It took him half the afternoon
to clean up all the slop.

Narrator 7: The teachers even used some words
we're not supposed to mention.

All: And that's how all the kids and teachers
wound up in detention.
